

RTMC on the anti-xenophobia campaign

In support to the call by President in combating issues relating to the xenophobic outbreak in the country. RTMC provided the essential needs (donations of toiletries) to the Refugee Camp in Germiston that was open to welcoming the victims of the attacks, as many were left in distraught and had nowhere to go besides the centres that were opened, responding to the emergency call to accommodate those who were affected.

Participating in projects under health and social welfare forms part of our CSI focus areas and our target beneficiaries is not limited to, however includes vulnerable children, orphans, youth and pensioners.

As the recent xenophobic attacks left many non-South Africans residing in our country displaced, many of the people were found to be in need of some sort of support and upliftment. The RTMC strived to be responsive to the needs of the affected through this initiative.
